Our brand

A lot has changed since we were founded in 1999. The marketing landscape has been revolutionized by technological advances such as smartphones and social media. As a result, our offering has expanded far beyond that of a simple email provider.

Today, we give brands the power to connect and engage audiences in ways that used to be unimaginable. Our mission is to make people's lives at work easier by giving them the tools and knowledge to work faster and smarter.

Our brand is more than a logo, more than a name. Our brand is our people.

We're united by our passion. We're inquisitive, future-oriented, energetic, fun-loving and always up for a challenge.

We are Dotdigital.

Tone

We're inclusive

When you're talking to customers use 'you'. When talking about them use 'our customers' (yes, not 'clients' or 'marketers'). When you're talking about Dotdigital it's 'us' and 'we'.

We're knowledgeable but informal

Talk like a person, not an English professor. Don't be stuffy, impersonal or reel off a load of jargon. But remember, we're still professionals, so bear that in mind.

We're straight-talking

No one likes a bore, so don't bore our customers with the technical details. Talk about what we can do for them. Focus on their pain points and benefits Dotdigital can offer. After all, that's what they really want to know.

We're consistent

By using specific language, phrases and words, we'll be talking in one, unified voice. One that our customers will instantly recognize as Dotdigital.

Style

Dotdigital

Dotdigital is always spelt with a uppercase 'D'. We always refer to ourselves as "Dotdigital" in print.

We use American English

Cart not trolley
Personalize not personalise
Inquiry not enquiry
Behavior not behaviour
While not Whilst, Industry not Sector

Write with purpose

Whether your purpose is to sell, inform, entertain or provoke thought, having a clear structure will help you achieve it.

1. Tell them what you're going to say
2. Say it
3. Summarize and tell them what you've said

Write like you're having a conversation

We want you to talk like a real person, not an English Professor. Mix a little bit of informality in with the information you're trying to get across.

It's fine to start sentences with 'and' or 'but' – after all, that's how we talk, isn't it? Plus, who really says 'you are' instead of 'you're'? No one, so there's no need to write it.

Keep sentences and paragraphs short

They're easier for the reader to digest. Bulleted lists are a great way of getting information across quickly, and with minimal effort to the reader.

Read it out loud

Run out of breath? Too embarrassed by what you've written? Go back and try again. Don't worry about looking crazy. And keep it snappy!

Grammar and punctuation

Full stops/periods (.)

- Use single spacing after full stops/periods
- Don't use full stops/periods at the end of titles, headers, or sub-headers.

Colons and semicolons (;)

- Use a semicolon (;) when a comma isn't quite enough of a break between clauses
- Use a colon (:) when a full stop/period is too much of a break between clauses, or when starting a list

Exclamation points (!)

- Use sparingly
- If the copy isn't powerful enough without one, change the copy

Apostrophes (')

- Use apostrophes to indicate:
  - o possession (e.g. Sam's jacket)
  - o contractions/missing letters (e.g. it's his jacket)
- Don't use an apostrophe just because you're adding an 's' (e.g. the 1980s not the 1980's)

Inverted commas ('xx')

- Use for dramatic effect
- Use for unusual words to avoid confusion
- Use sparingly

Quotation marks ("xx")

- Use to indicate speech (e.g. for quotes)

Hyphen (-)

- Don't insert spaces around a hyphen
- Don't hyphenate words ending in 'y'
- 12-hour event not 12 hour event
- Hyphenate compound modifiers to avoid confusion (easy-to-use platform but not platform is easy to use)

Asterisks (*)

- Use to indicate a caveat (e.g. T&Cs) is linked to the copy and a can be found elsewhere on the page

Bullet points

- Best used to keep copy short and snappy
- They should make sense read in any order, or individually
- Don't use full stops/periods at the end of a bullet point
- Start bullet points with an uppercase first letter for each point if the clause leading to the list is complete (e.g. We bring you lots of extras:
  - o More ways to save
  - o Extra sightseeing)
- Start bullet points with a lowercase first letter for each point if the clause is part of the same sentence (e.g. Extras include:
  - o more ways to save
  - o extra sightseeing)

E.g. and i.e.

- e.g. = for example
- i.e. = in other words
- Always include periods after each letter

Grammar and punctuation

Ampersands (&)

- Only use for names that include ampersands (e.g. Hayes & Jarvis)

Casing

- Use sentence case in headers and titles (e.g. Welcome to the future not Welcome To The Future)
- Use capitals for proper nouns (e.g. London, Buckingham Palace)
- Use sentence case style when writing about Dotdigital features (e.g. Program builder; Segment builder; Pages and forms)
- There are rare exceptions when a feature has a stylized name. (e.g. EasyEditor). But these should be used sparingly when speaking to clients and prospects.

Numbers

- Write one to ten in words except for:
  - in titles, headers and sub-headers
  - dates (e.g. January 1)
  - percentages (e.g. 5%)
- Write numbers larger than ten in figures (e.g. 11, 62, 197)
- Insert commas in thousands (e.g. 1,000)

Dates

- In marketing copy, write dates in full, but only include the year if necessary:
  - January 1
  - January 1, 2019
- If space doesn't permit, shorten the month to three letters but be consistent throughout the whole piece of communication
  - Jan 1
  - Jan 1, 2019

Multiple dates

- Use hyphens between dates when appropriate:
  - To replace 'from' and 'to' (e.g. 'May 1 – June 2' not from 'May 1 to June 2')
  - Don't use if 'between' precedes the dates (e.g. 'between May 1 and June 2')

Dotdigital logo

Our logo is our face to the public; the first face they'll see when they Google us.

As such, it's important that it is always used in the right way. Following these guidelines will ensure that we're recognizable at a glance, and in that glance, our vision and values are clear and unmissable.

The logo is comprised of the roundel and logotype set in a custom version of Museo.

Our company logo

Both the company and the product are represented by the Dotdigital logo seen here.

Our customers, partners and agencies frequently refer to us as "Dot". We find it quite endearing, but we want to guard against diluting the brand. To that end, we should always use the full "Dotdigital" in presentations or communications to set a good example. If our customers, partners or agencies are using us in a public facing document, ensure they have the correct logo graphic with our full name and refer in copy to us as Dotdigital.

Primary reverse version

To be used as a first choice for use on dark backgrounds such as our midnight blue.

Clear space

To ensure legibility, it is important to keep a minimum clear space around the logo.

To give the logo enough breathing space and maximize its impact we have specified clearance zones.

Pink indicates type and element alignment and boundaries. The spacing between main icon and logotype is defined by the measurement 'X2' (equal to 2 x height of the central ellipse in icon).

Blue indicates Clear Space. The minimum required Clear Space is defined by the measurement 'X3' (equal to 3 x height of the central ellipse in icon). This exclusion area must be kept free of any other elements to retain legibility.

Sub-brand logos

There are limited instances of public facing usages of the 'dot' prefix. For example: Dotlive; Dotconnected; and the Dotties. These usages are designed with intention.

We embrace the endearing use of dot by our employees and employee initiatives. But these usages are internal facing and should not be used in communications to customers or prospects. For example: Dotcommunity, Dotvoice, Dotfamily, and Dotgreen. When the initiatives have public facing activities, the communications and branding should always use the standard Dotdigital logo and guidelines.

Proposals for other public-facing usages of 'Dot' must be approved by the Brand committee.

Sub-brand logo usage:

Dotlive; Dotconnected; and the Dotties have dedicated logo lockups. These should not be modified and must follow the same sizing and spacing guidelines as the standard Dotdigital logo.

While the logos do not show a capitalized D, in line with core Dotdigital logo, they are capitalized in writing.
